FLOOD TRAINING

"It looks like Katrina," said a man in a pickup truck who declined to give his name. He was stuck in traffic that was at a standstill for 10 miles on the interstate north of the city, gazing at the Quaker Oats factory and buildings sitting in several feet of water.

Locals said the flood that hit Iowa's second-largest city is far worse than the deluge of 1993. About 25,000 residents have had to leave, and hundreds of homes and businesses have been damaged, many of them severely."

This article from the Washington Post says a lot about the devastation our fellow-Americans are experiencing in the heartland of America.

NORMI was in place and already training when New Orleans went under water after Katrina.

Thousands of people lost their homes immediately or were displaced to simply wait for the waters to subside. The serious health issues would follow!

Ronnie Wirth's, one of our Board Members, home was located three blocks from the 17th Street Canal levy break. I remember meeting him just a couple of days after the National Guard would allow entry into the devastated areas of Lakeview. Many of you have toured the New Orleans with Ronnie as your tour guide discussing what he experienced and how he lost everything to Katrina. He needed answers and NORMI was one of the few who could tell him what to do to begin the process of rebuilding, while protecting himself during the clean-up process.

These are difficult times for those in the flooded areas and YOU may be the answer to their problems. Come to the CE Training on Tuesday Night in the NORMI Talking Studio and let's talk about how YOU can be a part of the solution. We educate YOU so YOU can educate those who need to know.
