Re-Certification as of 02/2009

As more NORMI members are beginning to understand the certification and re-certification process, the positive feedback is rolling in. “This is the best move NORMI has made to add credibility to those of us who are working every day to learn more about the industry” was a comment we recently received from a hardworking ACTIVE member. Yes, there are always those who, because they don’t understand the industry or have an “entitlement” concept of certification, will not be thrilled about this giant move toward global recognition but the response, for the most part, has been “over the top” enthusiastic for this change coming February 2009.

Price Held

Here are some of the questions we will answer this coming Tuesday Night in the Talking Studio regarding the updating of our certification process, like “What is a CEU?”

- 1) How will attending the Conference satisfy my CEU requirements for 2009?
- 2) Why is “ACTIVE Membership” a prerequisite for re-certification each year and what is the least expensive way to remain actively involved?
- 3) If I am only “Qualified” through one of the NORMI trainings, how do I get Certified before December 1 without having to PAY for each certification?

- 4) If I haven’t fully certified yet, what do I need to do before December 1st to avoid being charged for the process?
- 5) I have been a NORMI Member since 2004, why do I have to “re-certify” by February 2009 or LOSE my certification?
- 6) Are the certification processes changing and, if so, how will it effect me and my current status?
- 7) Why should I keep my certifications current and how would this effect State licensing should my state decide to license mold inspectors or remediators?
- 8) If I take a new class before the end of the year, can I “grandfather in” all of my certifications or are they separated?
- 9) Do I have to have 20 CEUs for EACH of my certifications every year?

You don’t want to be caught off guard and we are doing everything we can to make sure the change is clear. Please take the time to come this Tuesday Night and ask your questions so YOU will be ready when we are to make the change.

See you then...
