AMIAQC CMR Certification so you can be licensed in Maryland. Why would you wait when WE ARE COMING TO YOU?!

For Immediate Release

GLENDAL, Ariz./May 23, 2008 --- As part of its new licensing law for residential mold remediators, the state of Maryland will require that all licensees hold an individual certification from the American IAQ Council.

The law, which goes into effect October 1, 2008, does not create a certification board or institute a licensing examination. Instead, the state will rely upon the credibility of the American IAQ Council's independent certifications.

IAQ Council executive director Charlie Wiles praised the move. "Independent industry certification is the most efficient way to ensure that licensees know the mold industry. With CONTINUING EDUCATION opportunities every single week, NORMI will help your business thrive in a very competitive market.
